Study Hall: Back to School

As we get back in school, HUB's team is focusing on major threats to the health and safety of staff and students.

One of the changes charter leaders are addressing is the increased demand for mental health resources. This month, in partnership with Kaiser Permanente, we will begin a brief webinar series for charter leaders focused on addressing and improving psychological support and mental health resources.

Second, HUB's national education team recently partnered with an amazing panel of folks who are championing the safety of our schools. There is a link to the recorded discussion below, and an opportunity to connect with those experts.

Free Training Program: Fostering a Psychologically Healthy Workforce for School Leaders

In partnership with Kaiser Permanente, we will be offering a free training opportunity for all school leaders, whether you are a Kaiser client or not, which will:

- Examine the impact of the pandemic on your staff as well as burnout syndrome and the toll of new stressors
- Review the definition and framework of a psychologically healthy workforce
- Demonstrate ways to strengthen the psychological health of your existing infrastructure and culture
- Provide an opportunity to collaborate with other school leaders to leverage best practices for supporting psychological health in your school or district

Audience: School and district leaders who are engaged in supporting the mental health and wellbeing of staff.

On Demand Webinar: Creating Safer Schools

Creating Safer Schools: Comprehensive Prevention, Readiness and Response Planning

School safety and security is a critical issue that affects entire communities and requires a comprehensive and well-informed approach. As the national conversations around school violence prevention, intervention and response continue to evolve, it becomes increasingly important to seek expert perspectives. Join HUB International's expert panel discussion featuring three thought leaders and school safety advocates from nationally recognized organizations working to protect our schools.

Lawsuit: School District Didn't Stop Bullying

A lawsuit alleges that a Mississippi high school soccer player with a rare skin disease was bullied and physically assaulted for months, with school officials failing to respond. The parents of the 15-year-old boy have sued the Pass Christian school district, a principal and Jones College in Ellisville, seeking unspecified damages, saying all three failed to protect their son, click here to continue reading.
